PROPESSOR DANA ON EVOLUTION.

the Views Which he Presents in his Col-Professor James D. Dana, of Yale Col-ege, sends a letter to the New York Indeendent explaining his views on evolution as taught in his college lectures. In the Sales of stocks at N. Y.
Stock Exchange, sha. ourse of the letter he says:

"My conclusion as to the chief point-"My conclusion as to the chief point—whether evolution went forward by natural causes, or by divine flats partly or wholly—as brought out in the last lecture of the course, is, in a condensed form, as follows: That the special means of change and progress by which it is supposed species may have been made from species and the systems of life evolved are not explained by any facts thus far ascertained or by any theory of evolution; that no system of causes has yet been proved to be adequate for the results; that the insufficiency of all environments and environment conditions, without some profounder means, is manifest; that the theory of natural election is a theory of selections, and not of the origin of species, and that and not of the origin of species, and that the selective breeding exemplified in man, which it appeals to as its fundamental principle, can rarely take place under nat-

"But, after saying that 'to me the causes and conditions appealed to seem inadequate,' I nevertheless admit " that, however inadequate the known agencies of change may seem to be, it is altogether probable that there have been natural causes of work, which were sufficient for the development of the systems of life so tar that there were few occasions for divine intervention.

"I further endeavor to show that man's physical nature, as well as his spiritual, was not a product or educt of evolutionary processes; but that it demanded tor its creation a divine act, referring for proof, as done by Wallace, to the lact that the Semina cular law is law by divine act; and in conformity to that law and through it creation, whether by fiat or by natural growth, must have taken place. The great lines of progress in the systems of life, indicated by the divisions of class-es, orders, etc., I believe to have had their foundation fixed in molecular law, under the divine will, and not to be a product or consequence of environment conditions. The best housekeeper is the woman who loes her work quietly, without making ler is a wearisome person to live with. She has specialties, and whims, and notions. Her plumage is always rufilled, her manner is always agitated, she is in a perpetual stew, and, unfortunately, never gets quite "done" till the last quiet sleep overtakes her. The worst of it is that these fuesy folks always persuade themselves and try to persuade others that they are accomplishing a great deal by their fusiness, which is only true in that they make total destruction of all peace and comfort within the limits of their petty sovereignty. Now, there is a great deal to be done in every household, however small, and it can be done, all of it, without any fuss at all. The whole operation of house-cleaning can be gone through with by disturbing one room at a time, while the rest of the house is kept in its usual order. It is foolish to keep the house disarranged for weeks together. If the house deservance will be a homekeeper as well, she must avoid fussiness. The home is infinitely more than the house, and there is such a thing as destroying the home by what is supposed to be the very perfection of house-keeping.

So soon, therefore, as an opportunity ty cocurred for a free expansion of the productive resources of the country, it was inevitable, the seasons favoring, that we should witness a vast increase in the supply both of natural products and of mannfactures. And the causes that have produced the prosperty of 1879 may be expected to continue for some years. Those always timid people who imagine that the great expansion of last year is simply a temporary outburst of national elation will be very likely to find that 1880 will surpass the product of 1879, and 1881 that of 1880 and a on a will trade has developed. surpass the product of 1879, and 1881 that of 1880, and so on, until trade has develop-ed some new conditions of disease that call for a curative reaction.

The growth of the grain trade at Baltinore, during the few years past, has been simply marvelous. According to statistica in the Journal of Commerce of that city, in 1865 the total receipts of wheat and corn were 4,823,816 bushels, while last year the quantity was 57,796,322 bushels. Baltimore ranks next in importance to New York. 1879 amounted to some five millions more (bushels) than the combined exports from Philadelphia, Boston and New Orleans The official figures are as follows:

tion, for all that science has to say on the subject, in other cases in the grand system of progress.

"I observe, further, that creation of species by divine flats does not necessarily imply creation out of dead matter, but that creation of species would be as strictly creation by a divine act, and of the two methods the latter would be, most probably, the true one, in view of the economy of action under God's laws.

"As to my belief that the primary forms of animals out of which the several great classes were developed were determined by the peculiar molecular construction of matter which favored the germ of one class or of another,' the signification and significance are not precisely what would be inferred by the reader of these words in the Independent. It is my belief that all results and conditions are reached through or in concurrence with molecular law; that the differences in germs, leading to their different modes of evolution and different adult forms, are some way expressed in their molecular constitution. But, with me, this is wholly independent of the question whether evolution was carried torward by successive divine acts, or by day that there is a large and growing ...87,8,0,286 74,424,003 162,814,289

It becomes more and more clear every day that there is a large and growing element in the Republican party which is opposed to Grantism with all that it imopposed to Grantism with all that it implies. It would indeed be strange if a plot for the suppression of liberty and the creation of a bastard empire on this free soil could be carried forward without provoking an earnest protest from all parties. Nobody really misunderstands the Grant movement. If the traditions of the people, the unwritten law of the land, which prohibits a President from serving more than eight years, are to be overthrown and a ruler called in to protect the people from

"Finally, I close my lectures by an exposition, from a scientific point of view, of the first chapter of Genesis, and present the conclusion I have long held, that the two records—the carlier revelation and the later, Nature and the Bible—are one in their explanations of the history of creation; that they both contain conceptions infinitely beyond the reach of the human intellect and bear alike evidence of their divine origin. The modification which has taken place in my views as to evolution has not been attended by any weakening of my faith in the Christian refigion or change of opinion as to its doctrines."

Erocks—The market was 1/411/2 per cent lower in early dealings, but a decline was fol-lowed by an active buying movement, under which an advance of 1/4 to 6/4 per cent took place. The improvement was most marked in Alton & Terre Haute, Chesspeake & Ohio, Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans, Mobile and Ohio. Marietta and Cincinnati and Standand Ohio, Marietta and Cincinnati and Standard Mining. During the afternoon there was a reaction of ½ to 1½ per cent but shortly before the close, the market again became buoyant and the decline was generally recovered. The feature of the late dealings was Western Union, which rose sharply under the purchases of round amounts. Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis closed at 90¼ and Marietta and Cincinnat, first preferred, after selling at 18, closed at 16½. The Homestake Mining Company has declared its usual diviselling at 18, closed at 18%. The Homesfake Mining Company has declared its usual divicend for December.

The Syndicate paid Vanderbilt $5,000,000 on account for the last purchase of the New York Central stock. The rise in the Chesapeak and Ohio securities is due to the heavy purchases by friends of the recontly elected New York directors and the contemplated improvements in the property in the form of extensions, &c.

The transactions aggregated 460,000 shares, of which 31,000 were Eric, 20,000 Lake Shore, 10,000 Northwestern, 18,000 St. Paul. 25,000
